The Hotel Puerta América is no ordinary hotel.

It's façade isn't normal, it's 12 floors, each conceived by a different designer, isn't normal, it's garage doesn't seem like a garage, and it's music is simply incredible.

Nacho Larache is responsible for the music. It's music that is looking forward from its black roots. Futuristic soul and risk-taking sounds make up this impeccable selection, which is another integral part of the hotel, just like the designs of Marc Newson, Zaha Hadid or Jean Nouvel, which are featured on distinct floors. In a hotel where every detail is highly cared for, the music shines brightly.

In the new selection, Nacho chooses a path off the beaten track. The disc moves from hip-hop of the future with Platinum Pied Pipers, to the soul of Amp Fiddler, the Hi Tek Dub of Fat Freddy's Drop, the soulful sounds of Nicole Willis, or the sunny Latin flavor of Raul Midón. This is only a small part of the gems hidden in this luxurious disc, which invites a swaying of the head or the hips, depending on the hour it's listened to. To prepare a selection like this is something very few are capable of, and Nacho is a master of choosing music which makes people feel good.
